St. Louis, Aug. 26.-Christy Mathewson pitched one of the best games of his eminent career this afternoon and broke the losing chain of the Giants. Matty's luminous work on the peak, when he had all the speed, control and cunning of his prime, brought the rushing Cardinals to a halt and shut them out. The score was 4 to 0 in favor of the Giants, who gave a Roland for an Oliver, for in the first game of the double header they were shut out by a tally of 1 to 0. Both games uncovered pitching of surpassing excellence, Matty's in the second and that of Doak and Marquard in the first. The Rube and Doak had a man's sized tussle in the first engagement, and there wouldn't have been any run at all unless in an extra inning, but for a wild pitch by Marquard. The wild fling let Huggins in from second base. That was because there was a ground rule. If there hadn't been a ground rule, Hug-gins would have reached third only on the wayward toss and wouldn't have That, however, was the fortune of war. Both Marquard and Doak twirled with masterly effect the rest of the way.

By losing the second game the Car-dinals missed their chance to go to first place and by winning it the Giants held onto first place by a tenuous margin. They did show, however, that they were prepared to battle hard before yielding the rung of the ladder. Though their vim than they have shown for some time. Their attitude bespoke more ginger and cleaner work generally.

The persistently good work of the Cardinals and the game pennant fight they are making has the Mound City bordering on a condition of baseball lumacy, and the biggest crowd that ever Jammed into Robison Field swarmed all over the archaic stands and part of the lawn this afternoon. The attendance was about the rambling stands could accommodate. Several times the first game was delayed while herds of fans broke loose here and there and soutled for forts to keep it down and back so people behind could see were rather and soutled for poorly and efforts to keep it down and back so people behind could see were rather tame. gentle flies. The Cardinals slugged with no greater abandon, being restricted to three safe taps by Marquard, and this is how they made the hermit run of the game: Huggins singled in the first and Magee sacrificed. Marquard bounced a wild pitch past Meyers; the ball rolled

Huggins wouldn't have reached the plate but for the ground rule.

The Giants were swept aside twice by double plays and did their best hitting in the eighth. Merkle and Bescher bunched singles with one out, but next came a foul fly and a force. Fletcher was safe on Miller's jugglery in the ninth with out out and risked all on a steal of second. A bad throw by Snyder got him, because his foot slipped from the bag after he had slid. It was a chance worth taking and the Giants never ceased trying to force matters.

The Giants were steadler in the field than the Cardinals, though much attractive defensive work was done by both contenders. Burns and Snodgrass made great catches and infield feats of a nifty type were performed by Grant, Huggins and Beck.

With first place almost in their grasp of the Cardinals couldn't stand the pressure in the second collision. Matty applied the pressure. He screwed the lid down so tightly that the Cards made only two hits and the total of men who came to hat against the perpetually young veteran was only twenty-eight. Matty had them nicking flies. Sixteen shuffled off that aerial way, and again, Matty's support was steady. He finally set up his twentieth victory of the season. A string of reverses immediately preceded it, but he broke loose from the fetters of defeat impressively.

Dolan, who was safe on a fielder's choice, were the only members of the domestic band to know how first base felt under the feet. All the others were turned back like breaking sticks.

Merkle thrust a single into left in the sixth inning. Dolan didn't stop it and Merkle ambled to second. He lingered there only long enough to get set, then presto, he bolted for third and got there with a clean steal, the Cardinals not ex-presto, he boiled for third and got there with a clean steal, the Cardinals not expecting any such temerity from a team thought to be tamed. He scored on a line smash by Snodgrass to Dolan. The Cozy one made a fine nab of the liner.

The Glants slashed singles through the infield in the eighth and added two counts. Grant, Merkle and Snodgrass did the perforating. Sallee was rocking on the mound and rocked some more in the ninth. Doyle singled, Burns drew a pass and Fletcher batted Doyle home. Sallee faded to the clubhouse, his measure taken, and Griner stopped the foray. The Glants had won a game after six

CHICAGO, Aug. 26 .- Chicago beat Boston 1 to 0 in a pitchers' battle between Through the twelve rounds he allowed ton 1 to 0 in a pitcher's battle between only seven hits and passed only three Cheney and Tyler. The game was marked by a first fight with Heine Zimmerman nelder for Chance, and a crackerjack too, on one side and with Maranville and for he three out no less than eleven men.

The fight started when Heine rached second. The Teuton claims that Evers hit him with the bail as he slid in head first. Heine jumped up, squared away and the next instant the allies were upon him. Evers took a crack and so did Maranville, who thought that his pal was feet throw by Shotton in the fourth infect throw by Shotton in the fourth infing headed Mullen at the plate. It in danger of getting the worst of it, seemed certain that the first baseman contains the plate of the two pitchers. Otherwise Brown would have finished in the regulation time. A perfect throw by Shotton in the fourth infing headed Mullen at the plate. It seemed certain that the first baseman would score from second on Cree's single.

Brown pitched a game that will live long in the traditions of his family tree. To cap the climax he hit home the winning run, with one out, in the twelfth, Evers on the side of the allies. In the seventh round Vic Safer drove the ball over the right field fence for the only run of the game. Zimmerman singled on the next pitched ball and tried for a double.

Seaton Pitches His Arm Off for Feds

TOM SEATON has pitched his arm off for the Brooklyn Feds. Working twice as much as a pitcher should work has exacted its inevitable toll at last. Seaton now is barely able to raise his hand above his head. The tendons of his right arm are strained to such a degree that he may never be able to pitch again. The Tip Top star stopped off in Youngstown, Ohio, when the team was on its way home from the Western trip and had Bonesetter Reese examine him. "Nothing will help but a long rest and gradual treatment," said Reese. Manager Bradley said yesterday he probably will not call on Seaton again this season and admitted the possibility that Tom's pitching days are over.

WASHINGTON PARK JOTTINGS.

Hai Chase was treated to alternate jeers and cheers, indicating that even Federal League fans have memories.

Two Buffeds were put out at the plate in the second. Downey was caught when he tried to go all the way from first on Biair's single. Later on Biair was nipped on an attempted double steal with Agier.

The battery team work hetween Schulz and Blair, former New York Americans, was primitive. Several times they seemed to get their signals crossed, the result being a wild pitch and a passed ball.

TRIAL BY JURY WINS GRAB BAG HANDICAP

Racing Luck Has Much to Do With Victory of Cassatt Owned Colt.

STABLEMATE FORTUNATE

Spearhead Aided by Poor Ride of Butwell on Favorite. Working Lad.

SARATOGA, AUR. 26 .- Capt. E. B. Cassatt's luck, which has been in the ascendency since the racing opened here, reached its climax to-day. His home bred Fair Play-Princess Chic colt, Trial by Jury, scrambled home first in the Grab Bag Handicap for two-year-olds. There were fifteen starters for the rich prize, which netted $4,200 to the winner, and racing luck had much if not more to do with the decision that the speed and courage of the contestants.

In the very next race to the Grab Bag Handicap, another home bred, Spearhead, put the finishing touches on the Captain's lucky day. Beaten off in his last race on a heavy track, the Aeronaut colt found the track to his liking to-day. A hustling ride by Ryan, combined with a corresponding poor one put up by Butwell on the favorite, Working Lad, enabled Spearhead, which was the extreme outsider, to land first past the judges a half length in front of Manasseh, with Working Lad in third place. Altogether the day was the most dis-astrous the players have had here. Only two short priced horses got down in Schuyler L. Parsons supplied the favorite for the first race in Tranid. The Voter filly was restless at the post, and, getting the worst of the break, was in next to last place until the stretch. There she closed a big gap but failed by a nose to catch R. J. Mackenzie's Adelaide T. Old Salt was the only distinctive fav-orite to win and he captured the steeplechase after a clever and patient ride by Tuckey. The summaries:

WARNER TOPS FIELD IN CITY TITLE PLAY

Reels Off a 74, Three Strokes Better Than Any Other of Seventy-five Starters.

All Favorites Except Purcell Survive First Round-Best of All Is Buckbee.

Theodore Warner of the New York Golf Club led a field of seventy-five golf. ers in the qualifying round of the annual touranment for the New York city title which began yesterday at Van Cortlandt Park. The New York Golf Club has charge of the tourney.

The winning score, made by Warner, was a 74. He was out in 39, a not especially good total, but a 35 coming in gave him first honors by a safe margin. Three golfers, F. M. Gould, P. t. Thompson and W. F. Purcell, made the round in 77, and the only other co petitor to get lower than 80 was F. D. Brengel, who turned in a 79. The general average of play was a little better than usual, however, and no one with a score over 85 succeeded in getting into the first thirty-two. In the first match round played in the afternoon there were a number of good matches. Warner won by 3 up and 2 to play from G. M. Ivory, but Purcell was beaten by Paul T. Haber, who took the match by 2 up and 1 to play, both getting around under 80. The present holder of the cup, W. D. Patterson, who was fresh from a trip across the Atlantic and could do no better than $2 in the qualifythe match play began and beat Fred. Haber by 7 up and 5 to play Patterson was out in 38. Some of the best golf of the day was played by J. H. Buckbee, who went out in 36 in his match against R. Peters and won by 7 up and 6 to play.
